

Method for obtaining a pharmacologically active plant substance from the marigold herb includes the technological step of extraction, filtration and drying. The extraction process is carried out by extracting the complex of biologically active substances of the plant material of the marigold herb with 60% ethanol in a ratio of 1:10 by the percolation method for maximum depletion of the raw material, followed by drying in a vacuum rotary evaporator to obtain a thick extract.