

The invention relates to medicine and to a method for improving the effectiveness of chemotherapy of malignant tumors resistant to chemotherapy. The claimed method consists in that in addition to chemotherapy green tea extract is used containing polyphenols and nanoparticles which are being provided by spray drying and/or grinding by ball mill.