

The induction apparatus comprises a primary voltage bushing connected with winding lead-out, a barrier insulation around the part of bushing immersed in the apparatus consisting of two coaxial insulation barriers. With the purpose of reduction in consumption of materials and labor intensity the internal barrier has a frustum of cone with less foundation faced to the winding lead-out.