

Device for measuring melts temperature contains two thermocouple wires, a refractory sleeve with two through holes, and a feeding drive for continuously feeding the thermocouple wires into the melt. The thermocouple wires are coated with yttrium oxide.