

The method for treatment of building materials or constructions surfaces comprises surface preparation and protective covering on the base of water solution of silicon-organic compound. The surface preparation is carried out by means of its treatment with 2—10 % water solution of sodium silicate. A 1—10 % water solution of sodium or potassium alkyl- or arylsiloconate is used as water solution of silicon-organic compound.