

An adapter for attaching an air duct of an erector on a draining neck of a rocket tank comprises a fitting for attaching the air duct, a flange with fixing points for interaction with the front end of the neck flange, units for interaction with a drive of the erector and seals. Attachment points are in the form of discontinuous copper strips evenly spaced around the circumference and a collar mounted in an annular groove on the outer surface of the flange of drain neck.