

Ultrasonic signaler of level of liquid has receiving-emitting block emitter of which is arranged as piezoelectric transformer, command relay, generator of electric signals connected with its output to input of emitter. To increase resolution of control of level position and to simplify design there are included source of alternating voltage connected to receiver arranged as thin-film electro-luminescent element, and command relay is made photoelectric.